Dear Sirs.

On the 20th of July last, my son Juan J. Torra Cabarrocas, addressed a letter to you making an application for a position in your factory, obeying informations as to the opportunities offered young men of his aspiration, laborious and intelligent.

In reference as to this last item I can justify the same as he has just been graduated to the degree of B.A. from our city High School despite the age of 17, but two years before he has proved efficiency as a teacher of mathematics to many of his class-mates and other persons whose knowledge has been fortified under his direction.

This voluntary service has brought him a monthly salary of $ 120-00, the which by careful economy he has to his advantage in the local bank $ 500-00.-I can say, with the legitimate satisfaction of a father, that from this age he has learnt the secret of the self-made-man.

But his enthusiasm, after the taking of his B.A. degree looms before him the entrance to our National University. At this junction, he is between two opinions, our University or The Ford Motor Co, the latter will be decided by your opportune encouragement to an ambitious young man; according to his own conviction he will be a Mechanical Engineer, the principal factor, as I have afore-said is your encouragement.

His letter to you as I believe did not express to its full intent, his native idea, as you can easily suspect, is not versed in the English language as a Cuban, for the which I now make amends.

I am the most authorized person to recomend him as my son, but if further recomendation is needed, I can forward them from persons of indisputable moral solvency from Detroit.

Thanking you in anticipation for due consideration and speedy reply I am yours respectfully.,
